Act Three Due Tomorrow
In Alsab—Whirlaway
Tickling Contest

Another scene in the don't-tickle-me-and-I-won't-tickle-you comedy being enacted by Alsab and Whirlaway was staged at Narragansett Park last Saturday.

The first one to be produced occurred on Labor Day, at Washington Park, Chicago; when, after the public had for weeks been kept on tiptoe over the prospective meeting of the two colts, Whirlaway dodged the issue and entered a plea in absentia.

The disappointment was intense for the race was looked forward to with the keenest anticipation. Then—lo and behold!

Hardly had it been run, resulting in the defeat of Alsab by the older horse Marriage, to whom the 3-year-old was trying to give 3 years and 7 lbs.—equivalent under the scale to 15 lbs.—when turf enthusiasts were treated to another three-producing interlude.

It was announced that Alsab was on a train headed for Narragansett Park, where on Saturday he would, so to speak, compel Whirlaway to measure strides with him!

PRODIGIOUS sensation!

Nationwide enthusiasm over the sportsmanship of the owner of Alsab.

Junior Riders Perform Well At Rochester

BY EDWARD DICKINSON

Under the very capable chairmanship of Frederick K. Von Lambeck, the Rochester Horse Show Association whose spring show was a decided financial failure, though a sporting and spectacular triumph, staged a one-day horse show at Edgerton Park, in Rochester, on the last Sunday in August. The fall show appeared to be one that was definitely in the blue instead of the red from a standpoint of monetary return. Large classes were the rule. A striking feature was the fact that the show was run on schedule. Its 21 classes with some of them numbering more than 25 entries were all judged between 12:15 at noon and

SANTA BARBARA WAR-TIME SHOW BEST IN HISTORY

Matinee Events Enjoyed By Enthusiastic Crowd Under West Coast Restrictions

BY BARBARA ZIMMERMAN

The Santa Barbara Horse Show of 1942 was one of Santa Barbara's best, could be said one of the best in California. From entries and financial stand point. The shows were all matinees on account of the dim out, even with this to contend with the crowds were large and very enthusiastic. Sam E. Kramer again was the manager and it was due to his untiring efforts that Santa Barbara attempted the 1942 show. Dr. Albert Beasley of Fort Worth, Texas judged three and five gaited saddle horses and fine harness horses. Mr. Revel Lindsay English of Chino, California judged hackney ponies, roadsters, hunters and jumpers.

The performance classes definitely over-shadowed the hunter classes as there were only four hunter classes and two of those, teams and pairs. The pair class and team class were above average as there wasn't one unmatching entry. The pair class went to Brian Boru and Victory owned by Mrs. Gerald Gray and Mary Rodgers. Barbara Worth Stables entry of Lanzar and Sandy George second, third to Frank Fallon and Sun Truder owned by Barbara Worth Stables and Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Collins, fourth Top Kick and Weed Patch owned by Harold

Wilton, Connecticut Juniors Sponsor A Labor Day Program

By BARBARA THOMPSON

On Saturday, September 5, the Wilton (Connecticut) Horse Club and the Wilton Branch of the Horse and Pony Club of England combined to present Wilton's annual Labor Day week-end horse show on the grounds of the Wilton Riding Club.

The 16-class program was very competently judged by Mr. Frederick Warfield of Golden's Bridge, New York, and Col. D. Douglas Young of Hillside, New Jersey. This show was run by members of the Horse Club and the Pony Club, both of which are junior organizations, and the committee consisted of Ellis

SPANISH SPEAR SHOW CHAMPION AT FRANKSTOWN

9th Exhibition At Altoona Draws Best Group Of Hunters On Record

BY GEORGE P. GABLE

The Ninth Annual Frankstown Hunt Horse Show at Altoona, given for the benefit of the Altoona Canteen, was a great success. It was by far the largest and best group of hunting horses ever assembled at this show. The crowd also numbered 6,000, the largest gate attendance. Both horses and people were probably present for patriotic reasons, as there was no prize money given in this show except the percentage classes.

Mr. Mellon's Spanish Spear was the champion of the show, and this brilliant young horse showed marked improvement in his jumping ability. He has steadied down and shows the benefit of William Bayles' training, and Tommy Spinks' riding. Doctor Grey, probably the most beloved hunter of Western Pennsylvania, was reserve champion.

For many years, this show has been exclusively a hunter show, and the classes this year, although they included five-gaited, Tennessee walkers, and harness classes, showed the hunter influence as it was the hunter classes that were outstanding. Some classes had as many as 19 and 20 entries, and the quality of horses was quite high.

The show started at 1 o'clock and

Quintillian Wins Governor O'Connor Challenge Trophy

BY WOOGIE

The St. Margaret's Church Horse Show, at St. Margaret's, Md., on Labor Day, was held in spite of the rain. Mrs. Richard Pentecost of Ruxton, Md., and Captain Boris Wolkonsky of Glyndon, Md., judged 20 classes.

Charles E. Lang, Jr., of Lang Valley Farm, due to Army regulations was unable to see his fine big chestnut, enter 8 classes and exit each time with a ribbon, and several times with a trophy. With no close competitor, this chestnut was hailed champion and received the Gov. O'Connor Challenge Trophy. His

Determination Of Some Hunt
Meetings To Keep Going
Encouraging To Sport

The latest hunt meeting news is that Monmouth County is going to carry on along with White Marsh, Rose Tree, Montpelier and of course, The United Hunts.

This is indeed encouraging to know that there are still some who realize the importance of carrying on if at all possible.

There are still many people whose livelihood depends on horses and sport and more than ever our country needs relaxation and entertainment to keep up the morale and spirit. Some time ago, the story goes, an English jockey was home on leave from the front and when asked how he felt about the home folk trying to keep up racing and sports, he just said:—"What do you think we are fighting for and giving our all—of course things should go on as much as possible at home and it helps us to hear that they are."

Wednesday's $5,000 added, 2 1-2 mile steeplechase at Aqueduct was a surprise to a good many horsemen but not to the public, judging by the prices on the Mutuel Board. Quite a few did not think Mandingham could be ready for 2 1-2 especially in the heavy going as he had been out for so long but, congratulations to Trainer Jack Skinner, he was

Long Island Combination In Brookville

BY EDWARD M. WARD, JR.

This year because of the vanning problem, it was decided to combine three Long Island horse shows into one. The Glen Head Horse Show, formerly held on Mr. Townsend Bailey's Farm, the Brookville Charity Horse Show and the Helping Hand Horse Show were put together to make what was undoubtedly the biggest one-day show ever given on the island on Sunday, September 6, on the Victor Emanuel place in Brookville. The proceeds of the show went to the Soldiers and Sailors Club of New York, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children of Nassau County, N. Y., and the Roslyn District Nurse Association

Hunting Notes:-

TO THE MASTERS

We ask you to send in notes to the BERRYVILLE office each week. Hunting men away in the service read their Chronicle, we send it to them. It should not be asking too much of you to give us some news for them of the hunting they cannot enjoy.

HOWARD COUNTY HUNT

Ellicott City, Maryland.
Established 1930.
Recognized 1932.

The Howard County Hunt Club has decided to carry on as usual with the land owners and farmers field day this year, the date being September 26 instead of the usual first Saturday of September. The later date seems to fit in better with the very full schedule of the farmers and gives them a chance to get their silos filled before taking time off to polish up their teams, harness and wagons.

The field day is primarily for the farmers and the land owners over whose land the club is permitted to hunt. In the past the only admission charged was 50 cents per car regardless of the number of occupants. This year, however, it was decided to hold the show as a benefit for the Minute Men of Howard County and the admission charge was changed to 25 cents per person. Prizes will be cash in the draft classes and War Savings Stamps in the other classes.

Draft horses will dominate the day with breeding classes and classes for two, four, and the always colorful six horse teams, as well as driving competitions on the schedule for the morning. The afternoon will see Thoroughbred and Halfbred breeding classes, two pony and half a dozen hunter and jumper events, a driving and a ride, drive, and jump class and then to complete the card "The Howard County Hunter Race" a mile and a half race over timber.

It may be remembered that it was in one of the early renewals of this last event that Blockade made his first appearance over timber, winning the event and a leg on the trophy presented by his then owner, Mrs. E. Read Beard, in memory of her husband who had been for several years an honorary whip of the Howard County Hounds. K. McL. W.

ALBEMARLE HOUNDS

Greenwood, Virginia.
Established 1841. 1935.
Registered 1935.

Word from J. T. Carpenter of Afton that he is entering 3 couple of puppies with the Albemarle, this fall.

ESSEX FOX HOUNDS

Peapack, New Jersey.
Established 1912.
Recognized 1912.

The Essex Fox Hounds started cubbing on Labor Day, September 7 with a field of 35 followers. Hounds met at Larger Cross Roads at 7 a. m. The war has made necessary changes in the organization. Anderson Fowler, joint-master and huntsman last year will not be able to take hounds out this year, as he is now in the U. S. Army at Fort Riley, Kansas. In his absence, Kenneth B. Schley will be master, and Mrs. Charles Scribner, field master. Mrs. Scribner, who feels that now more than ever it is important to maintain the pack for sport's sake at a minimum expense, has devoted a great deal of her time in working out the details. Richard V. N. Gambrell is secretary this year, and will take an active part upon his return from Newport this week. George Conner, formerly first whip will hunt hounds, Michael Hines and Joseph Mara will be the whippers-in. During the cubbing season hounds will go out Wednesdays and Saturdays.—E. H.

CHAGRIN VALLEY HUNT

Gates Mills, Ohio.
Established 1908.
Recognized 1908.

Bob White, younger son of Tom White is honorary huntsman of the pack till he goes back to college. George Humphreys reports that he is doing a grand job. He also reported that at Windsor T. White's last birthday, he and his grandson had a great 6 o'clock cubbing morning. A satisfaction to Windsor T., who was master of the pack from 1908 to 1927.

ROSE TREE FOX HUNTING CLUB

Media, Pennsylvania.
Established 1859.
Recognized 1904.

Mitchell P. Snow, a regular with the hounds has station at Santa Anna, Cal. He rode in the hunt meets and the hunter trials. In fact, won the Happy Hill Steeplechase at Radnor last year.

ARAPAHOE HUNT

Route 1, Box 62,
Littleton,
Colorado.
Established 1929.
Recognized 1934.

The Arapahoe will hunt as usual this season. Sunday mornings and Wednesday afternoons. Starting Sept. 15, or later, depending on the weather. Many of the regular members are in the service, including the master, Capt. L. C. Phipps, Jr., and Mr. Reginald Sinclair. Former in the army at Fort Robinson and the latter in the navy. Due to the many officers stationed at Camp Carson, good fields are expected. (Hildegard Neill from information of Mr. Will Grant, Hunt Sec.)

FOX RIVER VALLEY HUNT

Lee Road,
Northbrook,
Illinois.
Established 1940.
Recognized 1941.

This group of nearly 100 children held a show on the 6th. They are the coming field of the hunt and are being given every opportunity to develop into horsemen and women through competitive showing and sports. This is considered the best way to insure the healthy continuance of the hunt.

Larkspur

Mr. Walter Paepcke of Larkspur, Col. and Chicago, Ill., has acquired from the Rolling Rock Hunt, 8 couples of English bred hounds. Drag hunts are being held from his Perry Park Ranch. Many of the nearby ranches as well as his own, have been panelled. The country consists of flat, grassy valleys, between thickly wooded hills, hunting would have difficulty in crossing it, but perfect drags can be laid over the gently rolling hills. (Hildegard Neill)

Hunter Trials Replace Greenwich Hunter Show

On October 18 at 10 a. m., the Fairfield and Westchester will hold informal hunter trials, which will take the place of the usual Greenwich Hunter Show. The thought behind this change is that it will be more seemly at this time and involve less expense and time. At the same time it will afford the exhibitors some fun and the spectators will also benefit therefrom. Hunters will not have to be schooled, as the regular old hunter, with a few good

Boston Hill Entries Take Most Honors At Chestnut Ridge

The Sixth Annual Chestnut Ridge Hunt Horse Show held on the Lazy Hour Ranch near Dunbar, Pa., was cut down from a 3-day affair to a 2-day event and was well supported with 108 horses and ponies mostly from the tri-state area. Defense Bonds were substituted for trophies throughout the Friday afternoon and evening classes and Saturday afternoon classes.

Miss Althea M. B. Cary, Boston Hill Farms, Boston, N. Y., came down and took home most of the honors. Her grand going mare, Scurry Off, won the conformation hunter championship as well as the working hunter championship, and her Hurry Ashore was reserve working hunter champion.

Royalty II, well-known entry of Robert S. Waters, Johnstown, Pa., was reserve conformation hunter champion, having lost the championship by a very small margin.

Combination hunters, a new class this year, in which entries were required to drive in harness, show as a hunter under saddle and jump, was enthusiastically received by hunts behind him will be as good for this as he ever would. The idea has an appeal, from a common sense point of view, that it might be of benefit for other fall shows to think of the same thing, rather than arbitrarily calling the shows off.

Beagles

BY EDWARD M. WARD, JR.

Waldingfield Beagles To Carry On In Memory Of "Uncle Jimmy"

"Uncle Jimmy" Appleton in his Will directed that the Waldingfield Beagles be maintained and hunted at the expense of his estate for the period of one year by which time he hoped that some individual or group of individuals would carry on. The Waldingfield was established in 1886, making it the oldest active recognized pack in the country and it is good to know that Mr. Oliver Wolcott will hunt them this season at least, with Mrs. Wolcott and Mr. Arthur W. Ewell as honorary whippers-in. Mr. Appleton loved hounds and hunting and was the personification of all the good things a Master of Hounds should be. It is fitting that the pack should go on to his memory.

A postcard from Phil Crowe from the Isle of Man says that he has hopes of getting a few days with hounds this winter. I assume that he means in England, and not hunting Manx cats.

Enos Curtin is a major, stationed somewhere in England, and Morgan Wing, Jr., is a captain. Perhaps these three may meet up some day and talk of the Buckram and the Kingsland.

For their guidance, and any other beagler's who may be abroad, I suggest that they get in touch with Mr. John Pawle, Master of the Wiford Beagles who knows more about the various packs than any other man in England. His address is Little Havers, Bishop's Stortford, Herts. If in London it might be well to communicate with Bailey's, care of Messrs. Vinton and Company, Ltd., 8 Bream's Buildings, Chancery Lane, E. C. 4, who could tell you about where to reach the different hunt secretaries. Any English master will be more than glad to have American officers and men hunt with him especially Masters of American packs.

Hare Hunting With Pakuranga Hounds In New Zealand

BY DRURY, NEW ZEALAND

July 28, Tuesday. After an all night watch and in a slight drizzle of rain, I set out for Drury to meet the Pakuranga Hounds at 11:30. My baby Morris car, chartered for the occasion, was a precarious conveyance in which to dart in and out between the endless convoys of huge army trucks, between trucks I got an occasional glimpse of the country to be hunted, my first look at countryside in many months and a welcome sight: continuous turf fields of violent green, and between them hedge-rows and small coverts of bright yellow gorse. Aged black pine trees, a few mossy stone walls, and the incongruous palms, all against a background of bluish mountains, made up a setting beyond description. The usual drawback, wire, is present in abundance. But what range in viewpoint the width of the Pacific affords; no need here for panels or gates. Just canter up and pop over! I asked about the treacherous single sapling which was sometimes strung along the top strand, and was told, "Oh, that's just to protect the farmer's wire!" Later developments were to show a hard riding farmer field sitting down to show the way over their own wire in an excellent grass country where crops are unknown.

Despite army convoys, the glorious scenery, and the minuteness of my claret colored auto (with red leather seats) I was early enough at the meet to partake of the hospitality of "the ladies of Drury" who had thoughtfully provided tea and cakes for the hunt in the town hall basement. Though well past the hour of meeting, the whole day was ahead and the master devoted the next half hour to letting the people of Drury "have a look at the hounds". They (the hounds) were a very handsome and level 17 1-2 couples of orthodox English harriers, on the big side, and all home bred. Their professional huntsman, Mr. Smith, sat in their midst on a dock tailed wise looking hunter and was attended by a very ancient whip who later cut out a line of his own over four foot barbed wire fences.

The field, consisting chiefly of yeoman farmers and young girls was by now ready for action and the order was given to move off. Following came a procession of assorted horse drawn vehicles, the only autos being manned by the (Blank) troops who look very smart in their red and brightly colored hat bands. Following also was Captain Blakiston, U. S. Army, who brought memories of home by telling of riding Little Joe for Mr. Hyde in a New Jersey Hunt Cup of the early nineteen twenties.

Drawing across hedge-enclosed turf fields, an English hare, now native, was put up in less than ten minutes. A circular hunt resulted which was perfection for foot followers and spectators. The reddish brown hare was fat and continually viewed by all hands with much vocal accompaniment. Despite the above, road traffic, and cattle in every field, these big hounds turned in an excellent performance. They are bold and used to the cattle, carrying a wide front through and around each herd and thus often getting by without even a slight check. To see

Whirlaway Nears His Half-Million Dollar Mark

Last Minute Scratching Of Alsab At Narragansett Disheartens Public

The Whirlaway vs. Alsab meeting was the big drawing card for the Narragansett Special, 1 3-16 mi., 3 and up, with a purse of $25,000 added, netting the winner $24,300. Until almost the last minute, it appeared that the public would see the pair in competition but then Alsab was scratched. Everyone had a much let-down feeling but with "Mr. Bigtail" in at 130 lbs., conceding from 27 to 16 lbs., the field still had its points. Boysy, the $100 purchase by T. H. Heard, Jr., from Col. E. R. Bradley; the good 3-year-old, Valdina Orphan; Spiral Pass, who defeated Vagrancy in the New England Oaks; Greentree Stable's Corydon; J. A. Kelly's Red Moon and Valdina Farms' Imp. Rounders, the 3-year-old who belongs to the "I beat Whirlaway club" made up the field. Whirlaway was in top form and his share of the purse brought him close to the $500,000 mark as he has $491,136 to date. Boysy, in at 112 lbs., was 2 lengths off Whirlly at the finish, and 3-4 of a length ahead of Valdina Orphan.

The Eastern Shore Handicap went to A. T. Simmons' Blue Swords, Blue Swords, a Blue Larkspur—Flaming Swords, by Man o'War colt was purchased by Mr. Simmons at the Saratoga yearling sales for $3,300 from H. B. Scott's consignment. Prior to the Eastern Shore 'cap, he had won purses aggregating $5,265 and has met the good 2-year-olds, Occupation and Devil's Thumb in several of his outings. Lt. Col. Gustave Ring's Ringmenow finished a nose in front of Belair Stud's Tip-Toe.

Oddly enough, R. S. Clark's Colchis who has always found the Havre de Grace track to his liking when competing with the 2-year-old champion Alsab and who raced Alsab to the 1st dead heat in the renewals of the 'Cap, could not close the small gap made by J. W. Y. Martin's Abrasion in the next event and lost the decision by a neck. Last season Colchis carried 117 lbs., and Alsab carried top-weight of 126 lbs. E. K. Bryson's Mercury who finished 4th, carried top-weight this year of 119 lbs., while the others ranged down to 107 lbs.

G. D. Widener's cracking good Jamestown—Rosebloom mare, Rose-town, proved herself to be the best in the field of 6 who started in the Vineland Handicap at Gardea State Park, besting C. Oglebay's Level Best by 3-4 of a length. In her 1st outing since finishing 2nd to Whirlaway in the Trenton Handicap, Rose-town was the public's choice and ready and just galloped in front to win eased up by 2 lengths. If there had been a horse to challenge Mandingham it might have been a different story as he jumped rather carelessly but there was no horse that could or did. Iron Shot showed more improvement and went to running against the bit right away instead of waiting until the last turn and although he jumped better he could not get to the leader after being rated for a turn and a half. Elkridge seemed to dislike the going and may be going off from so much racing. He made one move with Scottie aboard, the last time down the back side and stopped badly after being carried by Iron Shot for 3 fences. Parma under light-weight made a wonderful showing and covered a lot of ground in the last half mile to be third. Cottesmore under top weight slipped several times in the treacherous going and sulked thereafter.

Some may remember when this grand old horse acted uneasy in slippery going when Mr. Hitchcock had him and ran him barefooted especially the last time Mr. Hitchcock ran him at Pimlico in the Jervis Spencer Stake.

Steeplechase jockey, Harold Clements, has finally been called by the Army so here goes another good rider and one who will be missed among other reasons for his jovial mood and good maners around the racetracks.

Regardless of all the bad reports in the several newspapers which seem to take a delight in the gloomy side, steeplechase jockey William Gallaher, who well at Aqueduct, is on his way home wanting to know how soon he can ride again.

There still seems to be plenty of jumpers around and believe it or not there are several new steeplechase jockeys starting to ride. Three new names have appeared on the Aqueduct card.

All the steeplechases at Aqueduct have been good contests and excitingly finished, the course and fences have stood up very well.

The unfortunate accident to Satilla where he landed over the water jump is hard to explain as he seemed to land on both front legs squarely, clear of the water and on level good ground and just how he broke both front legs seems a mystery.

Saturday's about 2 miles over brush, ended with the heavy favorite, Galley Boy, winning but almost being beaten by Winged Hoofs who opened up a ten length lead, took a breather of his own accord and then came very strong again at the last fence to be beaten a short length.

Admiralty ran a much improved from post position No. 1, she assumed the lead from the start which was never relinquished. C. Oglebay's Level Best, (Equipoise—Speed Boat, by Man o'War), offered the only serious threat when she drove to within a head of Rosetown at the three-quarter mark.

race to be second, six lengths behind Winged Hoofs.

Monday's hurdle went to the post with Black Ned and Kennebunk about even favorites. Black Ned made all of the running being pushed by Kellsboro for about a mile and then seemed a sure winner having three lengths to spare over Kennebunk going into the last hurdle. A short three lengths from the wire Black Ned still seemed a certainty when Kennebunk made a tremendous rush and did the impossible by getting up to win.

Several people, who looked away just as the horses were nearing the wire, couldn't believe it possible that the horses had changed places so quickly but the photo showed the winner to be Kennebunk without a doubt.

Both boys receive an equal number of "boos" from the crowd.

The few hunt meets that are patriotic, sporting and brave enough to go on this fall certainly deserve a lot of credit and it is hoped that all the owners, trainers and jockeys will back them up with plenty of entries. Some of the boys at camp are writing home and expressing their hopes that as many as possible of the hunt meetings will go on.

Belmont's steeplechase course looks better than ever and if they don't cut the grass again with a "razor" the going should be perfect. The fences have just been completed and look in grand shape. Schooling starts Thursday, Sept. 17th and Fred Parks thinks there will be more horses to run at Belmont than Aqueduct as several stables did not van over to Aqueduct and there are a few more three-year-olds waiting for Belmont.

Everyone seems to be afraid of a different horse for The National but most of the talk starts with Lovely Night then Bath, Cottesmore, Mandingham, Iron Shot, Elkridge and Rouge Dragon.

As Belmont expects to have another week of racing this fall, there seems to be some confusion about the dates for The United Hunt's races which will probably be ironed out definitely this week.

who was willing to beard the money-winning champion in his lair as a superb patriotic gesture—Narragansett had announced that the entire proceeds of Special day would be contributed to National Defense?

All sorts of other—scattered all over the sporting extras from ocean to ocean all the rest of the week with a thrillfulness that must have made the movie-magnates green with envy.

And then, when Saturday came—Alsab is scratched and Whirlaway whirls away with the $25,000 event in his whirligig style.

It being discovered, not long before post time, that Alsab, in addition to having already raced once that week, had not reached the track until Thursday and it was impossible to get him ready to race on Saturday for those (and, one supposes, other?) reasons.

But hold on!

The tickling—or non-tickling—contest is not over!

Act 3 is to be staged tomorrow, we are assured, when the Narragansett management will hang up the sum of $25,000—the value of the Special—for the 2 colts.

It is announced that they will race for it on the winner-take-all basis.

Weight for age will prevail:—

Whirlaway, 4 years, 126 lbs.

Alsab, 3 years, 119 lbs.

Distance—the hybrid one of a mile and three-sixteenths.

It is to be hoped that the readers of this column have been holding their breath—breaths—ever since they began to peruse these remarks.

And that they will continue to until about 5 p. m. tomorrow, when—if, or, perhaps, probably, etc., etc.—the consummation so devoutly to be wished will be consummated. Or will it?

As this grand historic spectacle was-wasn't being presented on this side of the pond, on the other side a real one was when King George's filly Sun Chariot won the Substitute (or New) St. Leger, in which she defeated this season's Derby winner, Watling Street, by 3 lengths.

In doing so she completed a wonderful record.

As a 2-year-old, in 1941, she was unbeaten, winning all 4 of her starts.

This year, at 3, she has accomplished the magnificent "triple" of winning the (New) One Thousand Guineas, the (New) Oaks and the (New) St. Leger.

Of these classic events, the Guineas is at one mile; the Oaks at a mile and a half; the Leger at about a mile and three-quarters.

Under normal conditions, each of them would have been run over a different course—the Guineas at Newmarket, the Oaks at Epsom, and the Leger at Doncaster.

But, on account of war-time conditions, all were run this year at Newmarket. For that reason the qualifying epithet of "Substitute" or "New" is attached to them.

This because it is regarded as a much greater test to win them over the 3 different courses mentioned than all at Newmarket—though even there they are not all run over the same ground.

This, the most famous racing centre in the world, has a bewildering variety of different courses of different lengths and shapes and when circumstances make it necessary to transfer great fixtures like those and though I haven't heard yet what the proceeds amounted to, I am certain that the three charities will be very happy when they receive their cheques.

The equitation classes were most ably judged by Mrs. Elizabeth M. Grinnell and Mrs. Samuel Wechsler and Messrs. Rufus C. Finch and Gouverneur Carnochan did the hunters and jumpers. One hundred eighty-four horses made something over four hundred entries in the twenty-eight classes.

A great little rider, Maggie Stehli, riding a very free going pony by the name of Peanuts was rather a sensation and got a great hand in her various classes. Though she only placed third in the MacLay Trophy (for amateur children under seventeen, over jumps) she put up a beautiful ride. The winner in this class Lucetta Crisp, was busy all day riding a number of horses really well and will, I hope, be seen in the championship at the National in New York.

The Automobile Substitute class was so large that it was thought best to divide it into horse and pony divisions. Mr. and Mrs. William Dobbs took the blue with their very smart turnout of two bobtailed cobs driven to a mail phaeton. Mrs. Marjorie Mewlett, President of the show, drove Mrs. Marion T. Shoter's Harmony Model to a pony surrey, to win the smaller class. There were some very amusing rigs including the Henry Obre's hansom, several tandem carts, Hempstead carts, and runabouts. The prize for the biggest load should have gone to Mrs. Norman K. Toerge who drove a runabout and had as passengers Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse and Mrs. Harold Talbot on the seat, and three Jouss Terriers in behind.

It was nice to see Mrs. Jean McKinney win the Brighthouse Challenge Trophy for the second consecutive year with Ibn B. Pat. She won the conformation hunters with her Bally Black and third with Ibn B. Pat.

The family class was a walkaway for the Kasachabar Stables, consisting of Katharine, Sarane, Chat and Bart Hickox with their father all on white ponies. They were beautifully schooled, both ponies and children, and made a splendid show. Mrs. James L. Van Alen with her son, George, was second. The summaries of this show will appear in the next issue of The Chronicle.

mentioned from their wonted homes to it, they are run over such of the various ones at disposal as seems most favorable.

Sun Chariot, though carrying the Royal colors, was not bred by King George, but in the National Stud. She is a brown filly by Hyperion, the most successful of living English sires, and is out of Clarence, by Diligence.

ran through until 10 in the evening. This is the first year that the Frankstown has had an evening show, and the crowds were about evenly distributed. The field was well lighted and the horses jumped without difficulty.

Next to the Mellon entries, the Chestnut Ridge Hunt, with their Scatter Cash, March Moon and Castelman, were well in the ribbons.

Dr. Lynn's 2 Virginia-bred colts, Grey Bubbles and Pulsation, were prominent throughout the entire show.

Carl E. Davis, of Conemaugh, with his 2 famous hunters, Eagle Mist and Morning Mist, placed in many classes and showed in every class they were qualified for. Mr. Davis is an enthusiastic hunting man and a great supporter of the Altoona Show.

A much coveted class in this show was the Founder's Cup, open to all hunters owned and ridden by members of the Frankstown Hunt, and this class was won by Mrs. Jean Dovey on her Clifton's Herod.

Several of the hunters have followed the Piedmont for three years or more and are honestly top mounts for ladies or gentlemen. Many are up to weight.

I would call your attention to my outstanding timber horse, HOUSEMAN, never out of the money, with one exception, when his failure was due to an unavoidable accident. He is in training. Another is CLIFTONS MARK, reserve champion 3-year-old at Upperville this year.

The following noteworthy broodmares:—

TRANSCENDING, by Stimulus—Entrancing, a winner. Bred to Imp. Tourist II.

Trails of America

The Chronicle's Trail Column

To The Editor

I am deeply interested in your "Trails of America" department and somewhat concerned about it as I have a feeling that you are not getting a warm co-operation you would like to have from the various states (I hope I am wrong).

This idea occurred to me: (In case you are having difficulty in getting stories) I wonder if Mr. Wayne Dinsmore could give you the names of those who entered stories in his two trail riding story contests? The second one had a great many entries I understand. Of course it would be easy for him to give you the names of all who won prizes in the two contests—I would not know if he kept a list of the non-winners—but he might have. I should think that anyone who had a story already written would be glad to send it to you, and in that way you might get stories from quite a number of states. It is such a good project—I look especially at that page every week. I was so glad to read of the care advisable for the distance trail horse (Vermont story).

Sincerely

Margaret Leonard
Tribune Apartment No. 2
Casper, Wyoming, Sept. 9, 1942.

(Editor's Note:—The two trail stories in the letter have been used in the past, one in its entirety and the other revised to make a trail story suitable for use in one issue. We too wish those who have trail riding at heart would give us more stories. While the season is drawing to a close, there still must be many parts where trails are used extensively. We thank the contributors for their interest in our behalf.)

the size and beautiful action of the hounds, and the plumpness of the hare, I was sure they'd gallop her into the ground in short order. But such was not the case, and even in this excellent scenting country, it was three good sized loops and forty five minutes before the writer had the honor of accepting a pad in behalf of the U. S. Navy.

Mr. Garland of Drury was one of the keenest farmers out and it was my fortune and his misfortune that he got mixed up in a wire fence during the first run of the day, getting a fall and quite a shaking up. Being of generous and sporting nature and not wishing to see a visitor on foot, he proposed to swap his horse for my raincoat. To this I readily agreed, being by now well fed up with foot following. I surrendered my coat and climbed gratefully aboard just as hounds were moving off for the second draw, headed, I was told, for "an even better country."

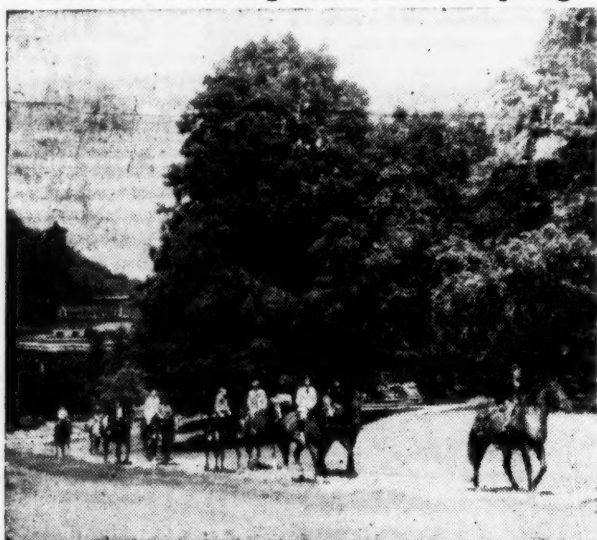

Long before I was at all shaken down onto my small but agile conveyance, a second hare was put up and a straight away burst of twenty minutes resulted. The big hounds flew over grass with nothing to stop them and wire, sometimes concealed in hedgerows, sometimes behind a two inch sapling, but more often just bare, came at us in rapid and hectic succession. The pony was clever and somehow managed to land me almost up when the hare squatted in a gorse bog, providing a moment for rest and reorganization before commencing the equally hectic return trip. A third hare provided the closing run of the day and then the order was given for home. At the request of one farmer, hounds were taken by a circuitous route in order that his elderly wife, confined to her porch, might have a look at them.

All hands now retired to the town hall basement where the ladies had again provided the welcome "tea and cakes." Next, a speech by the master to thank the ladies for their hospitality, and concluding with a cordial invitation to all Americans present to "come out often". Three cheers for "the ladies of Drury" were then called for by the Hon. Sect'y. They returned with three cheers for the master and then Auld Lang Syne by the entire company concluded the annual visit of the Pakuranga Hounds to the Drury end of their country.

The field dispersed, riding or driving home in the evening rain. There had been no show or polish, but I was grateful for the interlude of a day's sport with these hospitable people and especially to Mr. Garland for the loan of his good little horse.

Children's Riding Class At Hot Springs

The children's Riding Class at Virginia Hot Springs sets off for its weekly picnic in the mountains. Three days a week the youngsters are taught the fundamentals of riding, handling of tack, trail, park and ring riding, and the picnic is their reward for a job well done. Frequently they invite their small, non-riding friends along with them, conveying them to the picnic grounds in buckboards and surreys.—May D. Beale.

spectators and exhibitors. The winner was Fencer, shown by his owner, Goodman Feinberg, Greensburg, Pa. F. F. Byers drove his Flying Gold to the grounds the day before the show, a distance of 20 miles, to compete in this and other hunter classes.

Scurry Off won the coveted Andrew A. Thompson Memorial Trophy for corinthian hunters. Showing a good hunting pace over the rolling outside course, Scurry Off won the 1st leg on the trophy for Miss Cary. The trophy must be won three times by the same exhibitor and Helena V. C. Emmett's Ridgewood won it in 1939; Helen B. Shaw's Gershwinn in 1940 and Rolling Rock Farms' Doctor Gray in 1941.

The jumper tri-color went to Top Rail, owned by J. S. Teeter, Taneytown, Md., and ridden by his son, James. David I. McCahill's big grey, Abendigo was awarded the reserve.

The show was particularly notable for good performances, with only two refusals on the outside course in two days and no mistakes or falls.

Humphrey S. Finney, Towson, Md., and John Merryman, Sparks, Md., judged the hunters and jumpers and the saddle horses were judged by Russel L. Law, Baltimore, Md.

Notes From Great Britain

By J. FAIRFAX-BLAKEBOROUGH

Savage Actions Of Watling Street Recall Many Such Training Incidents

It is said that Watling Street, the Derby winner, is not really a savage in the true meaning of the word when applied to racehorses. Nevertheless, he is a colt with a temperament and so much temper that he is "not a boy's horse". High courage is a desirable quality in a racehorse. Indeed, even the kindest-natured, most honest horses which lack courage, are often beaten by animals not really as good, or as valuable, but possessed of that spirit which makes them battle out a finish better. It is reported that when Watling Street got loose the other day on Newmarket Heath, (he stumbled, pulled his rider out of the saddle, and galloped off), he went for a trainer's hack in a manner which was decidedly unpleasant. There have been many similar incidents with loose colts, on Newmarket Heath and on other training grounds, and once at Richmond (Yorks), a colt, which had unshipped his rider, rushed openmouthed for a stallion in another string. The lad on this second stallion wisely slipped to the ground and got behind some bushes whilst the two combatants screamed, fought, and tore lumps of flesh out of each other. One of them was so mauled he had to be destroyed, and the other was never any more use for racing. He went to stud and most of his male progeny proved 'hot', ill-tempered savages, difficult to manage, and disliked by jockeys who often had to walk down to the starting post and there be thrown quickly into the saddle at the last moment. The Stewards' permission had always to be secured for this and in some cases they have either ordered, or asked, owners not to enter such horses for more races. Starters too, frequently give trainers a broad hint that they would be glad never to see certain animals again which are either a danger to others and to jockeys, or so wild as to be unmanageable at the post and the cause of long delays there.

Racecourse Incidents

At Pontefract the other day Mr. Firth had one of those incidents which occasion delays of starts inasmuch as a starter dare not send the horses assembled at the post on their journey when there is a loose horse careering about the track. At Pontefract, Precaution, trained by the painstaking W. Newton, (an ex-steeplechase jockey), bolted from the 5f post and galloped the reverse way of the course, almost to the 1 1-2 mile post, before the small boy on top regained control of his mount. Precaution was then cantered back to the post where Mr. Firth was patiently waiting, but no sooner did Newton's charge see the "gate" than off it went again, and this time galloped the full circuit of the course and, without ever having come under starter's orders, Precaution's number was withdrawn from the frame.

This was not the only Pontefract "incident", for, as a correspondent writes to me:

"How the Jockeys' Valets got their heavy "tack" to the weighing-room

Toronto Juniors Arrange Fine Program Of Classes For The Fair For Britain

BY "BROADVIEW"

On September 1 and 2, Toronto children again held a Junior Horse Show, under the directorship of Miss Adele Davies, in connection with the "Fair for Britain". The "Fair" is to be run for two weeks, and all gate receipts are to be turned over to the Toronto Evening Telegram's British War Victims' Fund. It is being staged in the beautiful natural basin of Riverdale Park, in the central part of the city, and consists of over 12 acres of amusements and side-shows. The grandstand was turned over to the Children's Horse Show on the afternoons of the show.

Over 25 children entered in the various classes, many of them representing Pogue's Riding School. Mr. Pogue's two boys, Jimmy and Eric, were top winners of the show. Their well schooled jumpers were always placed in the performance classes, and they finished off by winning 1st and 2nd in the touch and out stake, while Eric on Gluger, Jimmy on Skylark, and Bob Blades on Jersey Bounce, formed the winning team in the hunt team class.

Don Hargrave won the owners-up, with his good mare Grey Light, who also took the novice jumping class for green riders, with Doug Bedson is a mystery. We know how a lot of bookies got all their "joints" to the course for we saw them engaging sack-barrow-pushing urchins, who doubtless reaped a harvest for pushing their loads up the steep hill leading from the station."

More About Stallions

There are those yet who remember the great Galopin. He was so nervous that before ever he ran he was taken into the paddock at Newmarket as a youngster to get him accustomed to crowds. Sweat poured off him on those early occasions, and he was almost mad with excitement, but he proved later that he did not lack courage, nor did his mighty sons St. Simon, Donovan and Galliard.

Still speaking of stallions brings me to a query from several correspondents as to Mr. Allnatt's purpose in buying the late Lord Glanely's stud and horses in training only to offer all the horses for sale again. It seems his object was to secure Colombo (not to be resold as a sire). There are quite a lot who are of opinion that he would have done better had he retained Chumleigh, whose first crop of yearlings is said to be so very promising. Mr. Allnatt is a very recent comer to the turf, he claims little or no knowledge of horse flesh, and has doubtless taken the advice of those in a position to guide him.

Albert Orme

Albert Orme is back in this country and hopes to be riding here before long. Public memory is short, there are new recruits ever entering the turf arena who care nothing for the past, and to whom the names of those who made turf history a few years ago, mean nothing. Orme, however, has not been gone long enough to be forgotten. He has been in Ceylon, where he headed the list of winning jockeys. Originally he was apprenticed to Basil Jarvis, he went to Egypt in 1927, and that season was in hospital for some time, having broken his leg owing to the fall of an Arab he was riding in a race.

up, who gave her a beautiful ride.

Doug Bedson and his sister Shirley were the victors in the hard fought pair saddle class over 9 other entries. Shirley won the hunter class for horses or ponies with her horse Billy, while Doug came 2nd with Baemoor.

The class for hired horses brought out 10 entries and was won by Ivy Ellard, who proved to be a very good rider. June won the combination class for Jimmy Pogue while June Davidson was judged 1st in the child's turnout with Mae West.

June Davidson was the star in the Gymkhana events, as she won the musical chairs after one of the hardest struggles ever seen in this event. The crowd was roaring with laughter, and the children too, who finally returned, almost exhausted. June also won the "apple-balancing-on-spoon" race.

The obstacle race was another very interesting event, and after many complications, was finally won by Eric Pogue on a small Shetland pony. Fourteen children lined up and at the word "Go", they dashed to the opposite end of the ring.

HUNTING AND THE WAR

One thought regarding hunting and the news of it, is that this is too serious a time to be thinking of sport that will entail time and money which could be better applied to the war effort.

The relationship of hunting to the national mission is matter of official record, from ranking officers of the service to the President of the Master of Foxhounds Association. They have gone on record in letters that have been published in The Chronicle. That should be sufficient to satisfy any doubts in the minds of those who question its advisability.

Maybe a brief picture of the reaction of hunting men in the service to news of their country and the hounds will emphasize the need of news for them. It is portrayed, not from hearsay or vivid imagination, but from actual experience in the same chaotic times during the mobilization of the army in the first war.

Officers and men are constantly at the call of military formations, their days are overabundantly filled with duties. They are learning to do the job they have undertaken well, exceedingly well. They are building up a pitch of enthusiasm so that they may accomplish their tasks in superlative manner. "When do we go over" is the constant cry. It is a time of strain, of a kaleidoscopic chapter of happenings. Nothing is certain, just pawns in the great game of war, to be lifted up and placed down somewhere else, at the will of those who control. Never a moment to call their own, just be as efficient as possible at the assignment of the moment.

Is it any wonder then that we ask for news to send to those who have ridden to hounds with us? It has a dual effect, first the reaction of pleasure that the game is still carrying on. Then the quiet glow of comfort that it is there and that some day it will be a part of life again. A good, firmly established something, completely apart from all this chaos and world of conjecture.

We called one master, he said, "Yes we have been cubbing twice, but nothing worth reporting." He was wrong, there are men in the service from his hunt. They will be happy to know that 12 couples were out, that 3 couples of these were young entry, that cubs were found and where hounds met. Not much news it is true, for a historian, but it is the breath of a country that is home, a pack that makes music, over fields that make for all that is worthwhile.

Another master told us the other day, "I will call you up in two days and give you some notes about the hunt, I have seen your calls for news in The Chronicle." He has not called up yet. It is matter of knowledge that there are men from his hunt who are in the service, who receive The Chronicle. It would have been a gesture of worth had he kept to his good intention.

Hunting is good for the nation during war. It has a mission, a great part of it being to help the morale of the men in the service. Masters are not fulfilling their mission if they fail to comply with this important requisite which is added to their duties because we are at war.

We wish you all good hunting.

Sky's Double Wins In Hunter Classes At Sun Set Club

BY EDWARD DICKINSON

Sky's Double, a 4-year-old son of Thunderation, owned by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Faugh, Jr., of Rochester (N. Y.) won both of the hunter classes at the Sun Set Riding Club's fall horse show at Park View in Panfield, N. Y. One of these events was for 5-year-olds and under and the other for hunters of any weight and age. In the former, Sky's Double was placed over one of his sisters, viz., Allen E. Dye's Thunder Punks, Jack Levine's 4-year-old son of Hurry Off, Major Haste, and Russell W. Sondheim's Imp. Royal Request whom I believe to be by Perilapides. In the latter class Sky's Double had to defeat older, wiser performers, viz., L. T. Ballard's Monica by Harmonicon, Robert E. Murphy's Showman by Harmonicon, and Frederick K. von Lambeck's Sport Parader. These two classes were a bit anticlimatic after the breeders' show at Avon, two days before where Sky's Double won the green hunter class.

The jumping events were quite large with Mike Kaler riding his own Little Risk to win the amateur class after a jump off with Mrs. Robert A. Messler's Glen Oaks, Frederick K. von Lambeck's Sport Parader, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Green's Hi Jack. The open jumping went to Frank Snyder's aged Judge, ridden by John Snyder. Dr. Ruth A. Boak's Firefly won a large novice jumping class in which event Edward Gadd and his Bandmaster by Harmonicon had a bad fall. The knock down and out went to C. L. Graham and his King of Sports.

The junior horsemanship classes were wins for Robert Glover and Miss Joan Churchill. It was my pleasure to judge the one for riders on hunters where I found in addition to Glover, Robert E. Murphy, John D. Murphy, Jr., and Robert Whitehouse, the last mentioned being handicapped by a heavy, halfbred mare that was way out of proportion to his own weight. The saddle horse riders were judged by Mrs. Charles D. Tinker and W. Allen Stacy who after considerable discussion pinned the blue on Miss Churchill, above mentioned, and the red on William Bowman. Stacy wanted the riders to change mounts but the committee objected on the grounds of time. Had the change been made it is my guess the ribbons would have been reversed. I was disappointed that Rudy Langer was forced to scratch his entry as he is a fine and coming rider, and he is doing a lot of very good work under the training of Frederick K. von Lambeck.

The class for pleasure turnouts was a pleasing novelty and though Mr. and Mrs. William McKay Patterson's hackney pair was the winner a lot of good will was expressed toward Carl Graham of hunter and jumper fame who drove a minute Shetland pony stallion.

The saddle horse and western classes were fairly well filled, and an adult horsemanship class went to Dr. John B. Deavitt with 2nd to Frank E. Plante.

Miss Helen Phillips' Suzy Q Carries Off Green Hill Honors

BY MARIAN GRIEB

Despite the limitations imposed on the Wicomico Hunt Club horse show held on May 29 due to the present transportation problems, Salisbury held its 2nd show of the season on Monday, September 7, on H. Lay Phillips' "Catch-A-Penny Farm" on the Wicomico River. Showers in the morning made it quite disagreeable for the first few hours for both horses and riders and resulted in an even smaller attendance than was expected but the spirit and interest remained the same and the 60 entries of the 3rd annual Green Hill Horse Show performed brilliantly before the Judges Thomas W. Clarke and Charles Cann, both of West Chester, Pa.

Suzy Q, 5-year-old mare owned and ridden by Miss Helen Phillips, again won the hunter championship, while the veteran Ghost owned and ridden by Vaughn M. Richardson, stayed on Suzy Q's heels to take reserve winner. The Ghost failed to out-jump Suzy Q in the knock down and out.

Another local mare, Crescent Rose, owned and ridden by Mrs. Denwood Mitchell, easily took 1st honors for the saddle horse challenge trophy and 1st in the road hack class.

Lois M, ridden by young Albert Torek of Oxford, Md., outclassed every jumper in the show to win 1st place in the working hunter class but failed to win enough points Geohegan and Mrs. H. C. Morton. The team class went to Lanzar, Sandy George, and Crystal Lake owned by Barbara Worth Stables, second to May Day, Jack R. and Last Rock owned by Mrs. Grover King, Harold Geohegan and Alex Sysin. Mrs. H. C. Morton team of Punkin Seed, with Mary Rodger's Victory and Mrs. Gerald Gray's Brian Boru were third and fourth to Camp and Ceiling Zero owned by Mrs. W. G. Barrett and Bonemo owned by Ellen Crabtree.

Camp turned in a well mannered performance to win the working hunter class, Brian Boru had second, third to Miss Peggy Platz's Carbon Copy well ridden by Joe Blackwell, fourth to Frank Fallon who was a bit happy for working hunter competition.

Mary Rodgers had the handy hunter in her Victory who coped the blue in that event. Robert Egan's My Turn second, third to Brian Boru, fourth to May Day owned and ridden by Mrs. Grover King. Mrs. King has only been riding a short time, she is fearless and shows good judgement.

Sun Truder (Intruder—Angee Mac) owned by Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Collins took the blue in the hunter in livery, amateurs to ride. Mrs. Collins rode and it was her debut in the show ring, might say a little nervous, but all went well and I hope she continues to show this attractive bay gelding in amateur and ladies classes. Second went to Carbon Copy ridden by his owner Miss Peggy Platz, third to Miss Virginia Crabtree showing her Taos Lightning and fourth to Camp ridden by Miss Eileen Crabtree.

The jumper championship stake of the show went to Brown Jug owned by the Barbara Worth Stables and always ridden by Charlie Zimmerman. Brown Jug and Cimarron owned by Dorothy and Jimmie Strohm were the only two clean out of seventeen entries in this class. After a jump off Brown Jug was the winner with reserve to Cimarron, this was a sporting contest as these same two had tied for the blue in the lightweight jumpers. In this class Cimarron was the winner with the red to Brown Jug. In the stakes Rudy Smither's amazing pinto Rex and Frederick Smith's Cavallone had to go twice to decide their tie, Rex finally taking third, fourth to Cavallone. El Rambler owned by O. F. Rousseau, Top Kick owned by Harold Geohegan and My Turn owned by Robert Egan went again to decide fifth. In this jump off El Rambler was fifth, My Turn sixth and Top Kick seventh, eighth going to General Copper owned by Mrs. William Keck, Jr. In the lightweight jumpers Punkin Seed owned by Mrs. H. C. Morton was third after a jump off with Brown Jug and Cimarron for first, fourth went to Mrs. W. G. Barrett's Ceiling Zero after defeating Mrs. H. C. Morton's Weed Patch in the jump off.

Mimarron, whose golden hide covers up more bounce than the law allows, took the novice jumper class on a flip from Carbon Copy, after two jump offs they were still tied, a flip of the coin and the blue to Cimarron, Carbon Copy second, third to Bonemo owned by Ellen Crabtree and fourth to Copper Lustre owned by Marjorie Durante after a jump off with Castalar owned by S.

Quintillian Wins

name: Quintillian.

The knock down and out was the most exciting class of the day, jumps went up to 5'-0" and Lieut. Ripley's Howdy didn't make the grade, but Quintillian and Black Flyer, ridden by brother and sister, Eileen and Linky Smith, continued to jump off 3 more times until Black Flyer missed and sent a tail flying.

Rose of Sharon won the ladies hunter class over Quintillian, being smaller and more suited to a lady. She won the non-Thoroughbred brood mare class on her refinement, good build and good bone. She won a second and third place also and was reserve champion, her second in 2 weeks.

Two horses of promise, that were shown today, are Drama X, a 3-year-old, light chestnut gelding 15.3 a Thoroughbred by Dr. Freeland out of Maximaneh owned by Mr. Dean Rathburn and is at present under the guidance of Linky Smith. The other also in Linky's hands, is Channel Isle, sold 2 weeks ago by Mr. Harry Strauss of Carrollton Hounds, to Dr. S. R. Graffam.

May I, owned and ridden by Miss Katherine Ridout, placed in several

R. Dabney and Ace-Hi owned by Russel Turner.

Cavallone was the winner of the middle and heavyweight jumpers after three spirited jump offs, second to Top Kick nicely ridden by Joe Gleason whom we will miss as he joins the ranks after the Riviera Show. Third to El Rambler fourth to Idle Chatter owned and ridden by clever little Frances Zucco, after another go with Brian Boru.

The ladies' jumper class had many clean goes, there being six to start with, it was won by The Joker, owned by Allan Tufeld. He was ridden by petite Shirley Rousseau daughter of Otto Rousseau. The Joker gave two perfect performances to win. Weed Patch and Frank Fallon went a third time to tie Frank Fallon on second and Weed Patch to be third and fourth going to No Trouble, owned by Otto Rousseau who dropped in to fourth on the first jump off.

Practical Horse Breeding and Training

by Jack Widmer

Out of his own actual experience Mr. Widmer has written a completely practical book on the breeding, raising and training of hunters, polo ponies and saddle horses.

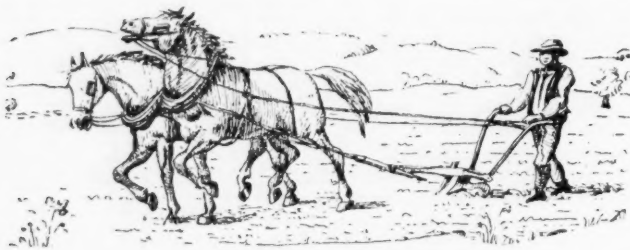

For a great many years there has been a real need for a book such as this, which is designed particularly to be of use to the amateur breeder. Because of its very simplicity and common sense it can be recommended highly to every horseman who is at all interested in the breeding or training of horses.

FARMING in WAR TIME

Reminiscences Of Days Before Autos May Prove Of Value As Object Lesson For Those Who Wish To Prepare For The Return Of The Horse

By Castle Hill

There is a definite connection between the horse and the farmers. Whether that horse is a hunter or a draft animal. For the landowner to be able to enjoy his hunting he must, if he is a landowner only and not of independent means aside from his farms, make his land pay for his hunting.

The writer, when hunting as a boy, with the East Essex, in England. Stayed at a farmer's house near Halstead, where many of our men are now in camp. A roan mare was the hunter assigned me. In the two weeks I stayed there, she gave me five days of good hunting in a heavy clay country. Besides that, she went to the Haverhill market on both Wednesdays, pulling a float about 16 miles in the round trip. She was used to go out in the evenings when the family went visiting. Mr. Chaplin, the farmer, had another that he hunted, this gelding did about the same amount of work, both were excellent hunters. This man was a successful farmer, always had enough cash to lay on the barrel head for cattle or a good horse, if he saw one.

When one talks of living the "Life of Riley", Hause Chaplin really did. He hunted, he played poker, he did some shooting, he took a nip with his cronies on market days, he had no worries. He made everything meet, he paid his bills because he had a continuous source of income from one end of the farm or the other. If he ever turned his hand to work, I never saw him do it. He made his men work and like it. He did not let a lot of spoiled "help", run his farm in the ground by draining his exchequer.

He ran a farm as a business, it was also his hobby, his hunting was part of the farm. I paid a fair sum for my two weeks of pleasure with him. My brother paid him a fair sum for learning farming from him, before he went to the colonies to invest his own money. But it was well worth it. Hause was a sporting farmer, he had to be able to pay for his sport, though it cost him less than the man who lived in the city and kept his horses in the country. The difference was, Hause lived in the country, so he could commercialize on his fun. He asked a fair price for a fair return. He made it a rule to always sell the animal, not the buyer. He was not a dealer to whom a $300 horse to one man would be a $1000 animal to the man with the fat purse.

The country is full of that kind, and that is why most of them never have a nickel. I have a man in mind, who used to sell polo ponies in that way. He was a smart buyer, he would always take back a pony if he didn't suit, but the one he sent to replace with, was always a better pony by several hundred dollars and the difference was paid. Today, that smart dealer is glad to take in anything, from inspection trips or some other way, to keep the wolf from the door. Another dealer, lived in the same state, sold his offerings cheaper, had one price. At that time he did not know as much as the other fellow about buying, and he missed many a top pony. Today though, this last man is one of the biggest sellers to the army and the general market in the country. Always has a roll with which to pay for all the horses he has orders for. So, now the day of the farmer and the trader is coming back, these recordings of what was done in the "days before autos", can prove an object lesson for these day of "the return of the horse."

Warrenton Spectators

Col. Henri A. (Tony) Luebberrmann and Mrs. Luebberrmann were at the Warrenton show, where the Colonel had a chance to see again how Billy Do was going under the Joe Ferguson guidance and the Springsbury school.

Mr. W. A. Laing missed not a class at the show, stayed right on the rail the whole time. Mrs. Fontaine Maury Thraves was up from Gordonsville for Saturday's events. She has some good sorts in her stable, she reports.

Mary Poll, who rode most any kind during the show and made them all like it, is going back to Mount Holyoak College, Massachusetts. She is good enough to report events for The Chronicle, when opportunity permits, this she also does well.

Neva Minton, now a resident of Warrenton and also Mrs. Montgomery now, was at the show and assured us that she would try and keep us in stories whenever possible.

Delmar Twyman, was up from the Carolinas, where he ably manages the Watts Hill stable of good horses. Young Watts was also up.

Walter Craigie came on from Richmond for the show, as energetic president of the Richmond club he reports that Victor Alenitch has the Deep Ran Hounds going fine. Also that there is more general interest than there has been for some time.

Bobby Wilson of Yale polo and Tennessee chasing fame is now stationed with a field artillery unit of the 90th division in Texas, near Abilene.

Members Of The Riding Club Sponsor Victory Show For Allentown

With the cancellation of the Allentown Horse Show for the duration, the local horsemen banded together to have some kind of event to take the place of the show which had been held since 1939, sponsored by the Woman's Club of Allentown, Pa. The result was a "Victory" show arranged by the Boots and Saddles Riding Club, a non-profit mutual organization formed to stable the horses of its members. The Allentown show had been held at the stables of Robert A. Young along the Little Lehigh Creek just outside of Allentown and the Victory show was held about a mile up-stream from Mr. Young's establishment.

Special emphasis was placed on the fact that the show was only a local affair, with no attempt being made to commercialize or to make money. The highest entry fee was $1.00, stabling $1.00 and admission 25 cents. No money prizes were offered and in the working hunter event a quart of Okolehao, part of a shipment sent from Hawaii just a few days before Pearl Harbor, was donated by William Evans Lewis. The highest jump in both the ring and over the outside course was 3'-6" with the idea that smaller jumps would encourage people who had never shown before to make entries.

The hunter and jumper classes were judged by Robert A. Young and Dr. W. E. Buller and the saddle horses were judged by Mrs. J. Ward Crankshaw and Harry Smith. There was no championship award in the hunter or jumper divisions. J. S. McCracken's Lady Jill won the blue in the novice jumpers over Cinderella, owned by James Hall. Richard Gladding's Red King was 3rd and later was 2nd in the working hunters, and 1st in green hunters. R. A. Gearhart's Brown Tiger won both the working hunters and open jumpers.

The ribbons were well distributed among all and at the end of the day the committee was well amazed to find that they had done a great deal better than just to break even.

YOUNG WARRENTON AND THE HOUNDS

GREY KNIGHT with Jimmy Hamilton up, showing why this top pair of youngsters came off with the Pony Championship. Hard ones to beat in any ring.

In the Family Class, the Julian C. Keith entry was wonderful, everyone was suitably mounted. Mrs. James Hamilton's family furnished the four young exhibitors and was responsible for the entry's perfection of equipment.

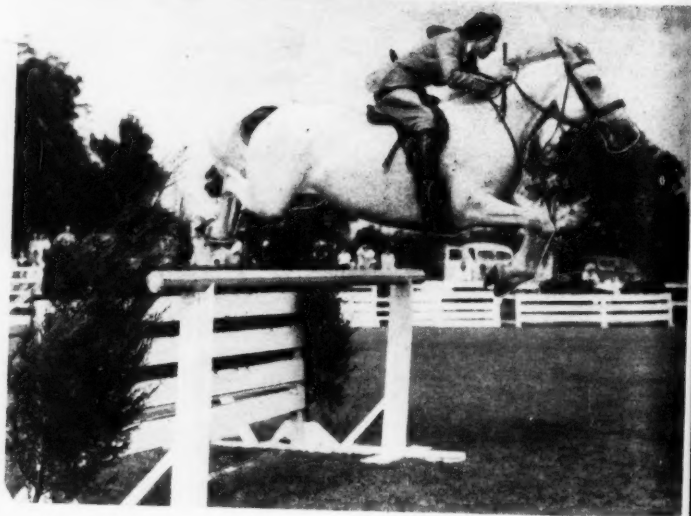

THE NITE and SILVER HEELS driven by R. McClanahan. As entry by Mrs. Robert C. Winmill topped the Pony Driving Class. A splendidly equipped turnout, not a nail overlooked.

A merry pack is the Warrenton Hunt. Sterns up and remarkably conditioned for this time of season, some 12-1/2 couples were shown under Huntsman Jack Bywaters and with Tim Conroy, the whip, at the control. Hardly a difficult job with this admirably disciplined pack of American hounds. (All photos by Thos. N. Darling)

Fireside Discussions Often Produce Great Pioneers In The Horse Field

By MARGARET DE MARTELLY

Artificial aids come under the general classification of equipment.

Concerning equipment, there are certain prescribed rules which should be followed especially in the elementary schooling of a horse. There are, however, some few eccentric horses that respond to trick methods, rather than the accepted rules.

Experimenting is part of the sport. A rousing discussion while gathered around a fire, after a day's run, is often the medium of enlightenment to an enterprising horseman. Such discussions may have broken a few friendships but they have also produced invaluable pioneers in the field of horses.

As a bridle is the most essential piece of equipment it should probably be mentioned first.

A green horse should be schooled in a bit and bridle, complete with nose band.

A horse with a snaffle mouth is a gem and the best way to make a snaffle mouth is to school in a double bit. The rider is then able to ride him on the snaffle and develop his mouth to respond to it. The curb reins carried between the third and fourth fingers are loose enough to be applied at the discretion of the rider. The horse's neck muscles are then properly set so that he is quiet and does not rebel when he is up into the bit. He is neither a "star gazer" nor does he learn the defense of arching his neck to get behind the bit or to lean on it.

In schooling, the purpose of the snaffle is to elevate the horse's head. The curb depresses it. After the horse has developed his way of going, the snaffle can be used alone but never should the curb be used alone.

The curb should be used like an emergency break. It punishes the horse in four different places. It causes pain to the bars of his mouth, the curb chain pinches underneath, the port of the bit strikes the roof of his mouth and the head stall presses his ears forward. Obviously, it is torture to a horse unless it is used with extreme caution. If applied with quick intermittent taps and only in the case of disobedience on the part of the horse, he learns to obey the snaffle rather than subject himself to this punishment.

One of the most important services of the bit and bridle is to lessen the chances of a run-away. There are times when everything fails but these times usually occur with outlaw horses. Any horse may run occasionally. If the normal or even violent application of the curb does not check him, the rider may well assume that his horse has "taken" the bit. With a bit and bridle he can divide the support by taking three reins on one hand and one in the other. The horse is forced to let go, flex his jaw and pull back his nose, which shortens his stride.

A Pelham bit is a single bit resembling the curb, with four reins. It is more severe than a snaffle but less effective than the bit and bridle.

A running martingale should be used when the snaffle alone is used.

The reins pass through the rings of the martingale and it is only effective when the rider pulls the reins. Its purposes are to keep the horse's head in place and to make rearing difficult. In no way does it interfere with the mechanical operation of the horse.

A standing martingale is attached to the nose band and is effective when the horse tosses his head or rears or extends his head and neck. It should not under any circumstances be used when jumping. Its fundamental purpose is to prohibit extreme extension of the horse's head and neck. This extension is necessary when the horse jumps. The standing martingale causes fumbling of the forehead when jumping. It is extremely dangerous if it is tight enough to serve as a martingale. If it is loose enough to abolish this danger, the horse is apt to thrust his foot through it when he jumps.

An Irish martingale is merely a short length of strap with a ring in each end. The reins pass through these rings and prevent the horse from tossing the reins over his ear when he tosses his head.

Blunt spurs should be standard equipment for the well turned out rider. Their purpose is not solely to urge the horse to greater speed. They discipline a fast horse as well as a slow one. A light jab with the spurs does not inflict as much pain on the horse as a violent blow with the riders heels. Spurs keep the horse up into the bit, alert, responsive and subordinate.

They are, however, useless, unless they are properly put on. They must rest at the top of the counter of the rider's boots, buckles out, no "leaking". If they are lower on the boots, they point toward the ground and not at the horse when the rider depresses his heels.

The rider in spurs is able to apply the leg aids subtly, imperceptibly, yet effectively which is the aim of every conscientious student of equitation.

6:45 at night. That's a record, right there, and compliment for speed as well as accuracy must be paid to Ted Roulston and Col. William Henderson who filled the roles of judges, and to Patrick Ryan as ring master. John D. Murphy was announcer.

The show opened with two horsemanship classes in the ring at the same time—both for riders 18 and under—but one for those on hunters and the other for those on saddle horses. After a general walk, trot, and canter on each track the two were separated and called upon to perform in small circles marked off at ends of the ring. Of the 6 on hunters, Robert M. Glover of Genesee was awarded the blue. Of the 16 on saddle horses, Miss Joan Churchill on her miniature saddle horse, a pony known as Black Mystery was winner. John B. Devitt, Jr., was 2nd; and Miss Shirley Gregory was a very good 3rd. (In fact, had I been judging I believe I would have assigned the blue to Miss Gregory who did a very good job. Completely out of the ribbons was Rudy Langer who later in the show exhibited a world of real horsemanship when a jumper he was riding tangled his front legs in a jump and for several lively minutes struggled frantically to extricate himself. During this Langer handled himself and his mount with consummate skill and far more poise than one would have expected from a junior rider, who is really a junior.)

The novice jumping class, as is customary, held several entries whose novicehood could justly be questioned but since these were not among the winners no great harm was done. Mike Caler's No Risk had the blue.

The open jumping was the next event of its kind and Frank Snyder's aged Judge was winner in a field of 26 entries. Frederick K. von Lambeck's Sports Parade had the red, and Douglaston Manor Farm's Birdwood Hazard had the yellow. A year ago Mr. and Mrs. William C. Faugh, Jr., attempted to retire their Skyward and ceremonies were held for him at a show in Oswego; but in the interests of any show in Rochester which might be influenced by the success or failure of the show on Sunday, Aug. 30, they were induced to bring him from retirement and with Frederick K. von Lambeck up this aged, chestnut gelding did a good job for the 4th place. (I first saw him at a Rochester Exposition Horse Show in either 1928 or 1929 when Carl Graham exhibited him for Mrs. Ernest F. Jenkins, his then owner.)

In a field of 37 entries, Mrs. Robert A. Messler, II rode her own, aged and honest, Glen Oaks for the blue. There was a children's jumper class of 13 entries won by Robert Edward Murphy's Showman. This class, however, was not a good one. Too many of the mounts were not suitable for child riders and demanded too much of their riders in the matter of control to be safe mounts. Beyond this fact a great deal must be said in praise of the courage and horsemanship of the juniors that essayed the class.

The knock down and out class was a triumph for Frederick K. von Lambeck who after a lot of jumping off with a lot of mighty good riders and mighty good horses came into the ring for 1st, 2nd, and 4th with Sports Parade, Glen Oaks, and Queen of Sports, respectively. John Snyder rode his father's Judge for the yellow and was a real favorite with the spectators.

Two hunter classes were judged over an out-side course and I was unable to see as much of them as I should have liked for during one I was called upon to take motion pictures of a novelty, harness class, and during the other to "ring master" a five gaited event. Both of the hunter classes went to Douglaston Manor Farm's Martha H who not only performs well but reveals a lot of good hunter conformation. One of the reds went to Mr. and Mrs. William C. Faugh, Jr.'s Sky's Double and the other to Paul Fout's No Mercy.

The novelty harness class was listed as "Victory Class for Gasless Buggies" and proved an event for both single harness horses and pairs judged on manners and appointments. Mrs. Herbert A. Roger's Ann Oddity, a saddle-bred mare, driven by Mrs. Roger before a yellow and tan four-wheel cart was the winner.

The saddle classes were large. So were the western events. The pleasure hack event was in 2 divisions—hunter type and saddle horse type with Miss Patricia Dunn's Leaf Hanger winning one division and Douglaston Manor Farm's Golden Flash winning the other. The combined class made the ring quite crowded for 26 was the number, and as pleasure hacks it would be frightfully difficult to find a class with as many entries that I would like to ride as filled this event.

Of the some 160 horses shown, 90 per cent do I know, and about 85 per cent of the owners are well enough known to me to call me by my first name. It is my great regret that space does not permit a more lengthy discussion of their efforts. I should be delighted to write about Miss Peggy Rogers in one event; Dr. V. J. Levy in another, and so on.

WAR and the HORSE

Horsemen And Women Remain An Uncapitalized Asset In Defense Phases

BY CLARENCE E. BOSWORTH

Eager as we are to co-operate, and great as our special capacities are, the horsemen and horsewomen of the country are not being given much opportunity to apply their horse properties and their horsemanship to the war-created emergency. This fact does not apply on the Pacific Coast where the volunteer members of the sheriffs' posses have been, and still are doing, grand work; nor does it apply in some other sections of the country where the officials are horsemen themselves or have had experience with mounted units. Otherwise, it applies altogether too generally throughout the country.

The result is, thousands of men in police and armed-service uniforms are doing duty from which they could be released if replaced by volunteer horsemen and horsewomen. In many instances, mounted volunteers would add effectiveness to the service these men are now rendering and in every instance, they would release men to duty in which no replacement or substitute for them is obtainable. This would be a step toward the greater effectiveness with which we shall have to apply our man (and woman) power to the war effort as that effort becomes still more complicated and intense. Also, it could contribute toward saving millions of dollars while making only reasonable demands upon our horsemen and horsewomen for volunteer service.

Another unfortunate result of the failure of officials to enlist the co-operation of well mounted, experienced riders, is a weakness in state and local Civilian Defense set-ups. Such units have been officially included in OCD organizations in about half of the states, but this inclusion nowhere near approaches their availability. This whole OCD undertaking has been a pretty sad affair from its national beginning. Except in localities where more than usual understanding and ability have been applied to its organization and management, it continues as a muddling effort under squabbling directors by confused participants; and it will take only one war-created emergency to prove that statement. I hope for the sake of my fellow citizens that it never will be proved.

What I'm driving at specifically on this point is this: any police officer, volunteer or professional, who is well informed, knows that, for handling crowds and controlling

War Calls Must Come First

The congestion of long distance lines is becoming so serious that the C. and P. Telephone Company of Virginia is asking the telephone-using public to make only necessary calls, to be brief, and to avoid using long distance lines especially during hours when calling is heaviest.

"War calls must come first," said R. N. Garber, manager, in explaining that the public can best help by making only necessary long distance calls; by making these calls before 9 a. m., between noon and 2 p. m., 5 and 7 p. m., and after 10 p. m., being as brief as possible (and being considerate in the use of the service if there are others on the line.)

"In normal times we would relieve this situation by building additional facilities, but in this emergency materials and supplies necessary for telephone construction are being used in the manufacture of war weapons. Our inability to obtain these essential materials makes it necessary to ask the public to cooperate in relieving the load on long distance."

"The object of this request," continued Mr. Garber, "is to save vital materials needed in the war effort and to avoid congestion which would interfere with the urgent calls in the Army, Navy and other branches of military service."

Mr. Garber emphasized that from the standpoint of telephone calls, Baltimore, Washington, Norfolk and Newport News are among the most congested areas in the country.

An Old Cavalryman's Advice To His Son

The hunting season is foremost in our minds, when we can let the war out of the picture for a moment. You are in a position to maybe have a day now and then at Riley. This will undoubtedly depend on your rank in the service. Your rank depends on your accomplishments. Which is a good place to again emphasize to you that your career in the army is just what you make it.

There is no better place than the Army to receive recognition for good service, especially in this time of war, when the army is needing good men, efficient men, trustworthy men, men who will put their service ahead of their own petty likes. Men who have not a thought as to hours of work. If you are the sort of man they want, they will place you in a position of trust, they will promote you, then you will have the privilege of being able to hunt. Assuredly there are not enough horses to mount many of the enlisted men, the officer personnel will come first, as it should be.

Hunting is only one of the relaxations that you can participate in. In the very short portion of time that they allow you. But take advantage of all of it. You will find that those who excel are given an opportunity to develop that excellence. Place yourself in line for the recognition of your qualifications by doing all you can along the lines of competitive sports, where you are able to successfully participate.

It is generally accepted that a man who can play well can fight well.

MEN OF THE ARMED FORCES

Remember The Chronicle has arranged to send the paper to you for $3. Write to the BERRYVILLE OFFICE. Keep us posted of your changes of address. traffic, mounted men are eminently superior. Likewise, any communications officer with disaster experience, knows that high-speed wire and wireless communications may be expected to fail in whole or in part; he knows that when these fail and motorized communication takes over, it too will fail when roads and bridges are bombed out or debris-strewn to the point of impassability. What then? That is when mounted messengers take over. At least, that is when they should take over; but I venture the statement and I base it upon extensive observation, that in not ten percent of the communities where such mounted police and communications organizations could be formed and trained, have they even been seriously considered! For the sake of being impressive, I hope our editor will let this statement stand just as I have written it. This is the statement. There's going to be hell to pay in any community which becomes the victim of enemy violence because of this oversight! I know because of an unusual experience in disasters. In the mass, people do not remain calm. They do not obey previously given instructions. They have to be protected by force from their own excitement.

Why is it then, that this great body of horsemen and horsewomen are not being more generally prepared for emergency service and are not being more generally used where they might be used even now with greater effectiveness and so much economy? The fault is mostly ours because we have not been vigorous enough and persistent enough with statements, to officials of our availability and capacities. We know our own willingness. We know the very effective co-operation we are capable of. We know the variety of services we could render. Because we know these things so well, we have presumed that officials of protective, rescue and relief organizations have, at least, a working knowledge of them, too; and we have presumed they would ask for our co-operation if they wanted it. These are false premises.

Most of these officials know so little about the capacities of mounted individuals and of mounted units, they haven't even thought of them as being possibly useful. The great majority of the officials now in executive positions were developed during the present era of mechanization. They are not horsemen themselves. They lack experience with horsemen. They have false impressions concerning us as people. We have argued the continuing value of, and need for cavalry in our armed forces since before World War I. When the present war economy began to develop, we argued

Hunting Endorsed By Army Men As Being Essential

Sport Should Be Stressed More Than Ever During Period Of Emergency

Mr. W. Plunket Stewart, Master of Foxhounds Association, Commercial Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

My dear Mr. Stewart:

Your inquiry with reference to the continuance of fox hunting has just been received by me.

In my opinion, during a national emergency, the normal way of living of the people should be changed as little as possible. All athletic, healthful activities should be encouraged and stressed to a greater extent even than during times of peace.

Fox hunting certainly should be continued. It develops those individual characteristics of good physical condition, alertness and initiative, not only so essential to a soldier, but equally as important to the civilian in modern war, and it tends to promote good morale. The knowledge of some degree of horsemanship among civilians may become a matter of national importance, as the military situation increases the necessity of diverting more automotive means of transportation to military use. The restriction on the sale of automobiles and tires is an indication of more drastic action that may be necessary in case of a long war.

I reiterate that, in my opinion, fox hunting should not only be continued, but that every effort should be made by the Masters of Foxhounds Association to encourage all people possible to take part in the sport.

Sincerely yours,

R. M. Danford
Major General, U. S. Army
Chief of Field Artillery.

War Department
Office of the Chief of Field Artillery
Washington, D. C.

Mr. W. Plunket Stewart,
Master of Foxhounds Association,
Commercial Trust Building,
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

My dear Mr. Stewart:

In reply to your query with reference to fox hunting during the emergency, my views are as follows:

It is my fixed opinion that all normal, healthful athletic activities should not only be continued, but should be stressed during the period of the emergency. From my standpoint as the Chief of Cavalry this is particularly true as regards hunting. The British continue to hunt as usual. You may even recall that Lord Wellington during the progress of the Peninsula Campaign was accustomed to lead his officers in the hunt behind the lines of Torres Vedras whenever there was a lull in the fighting activities.

From my standpoint, I believe also that hunting should continue not only because it is a healthful and normal sport, but because it aids in the development of the type of horse used for cavalry purposes. It also illustrates to my mind very vividly the use of the horse in war.

Since this show was held mainly for the junior riders of southern Fairfield County and northern Westchester County, the exhibitors represented a number of the foremost instructors of this locality, including Mrs. Frank Thompson, Wilton Riding Club, Miss Felicia Townsend, Ox Ridge Hunt Club, Darien, and Mr. Frank Lamoureux, Fairfield County Hunt Club, Westport. Among the classes open to everyone were road hacks, hacks in which the suitability of the horse to the rider was to be especially considered, a utility class for horses in harness, a working hunter class over the new outside course, hunter hacks, and open jumpers over jumps starting at 3'-6". There was also a fine horsemanship division made up of a beginners' class in which the contestants were asked only to walk and trot, horsemanship for children 14 years of age and under, horsemanship for children over 14, a beginners' horsemanship jumping class with fences at 2'-6", an open horsemanship jumping class over fences at 3'-0", and a bareback class.

the wisdom of carrying on with our ownership of horses, and we argued emphatically the wisdom of carrying on our show, sports and recreational programs as an indirect contribution to war-winning. We suggested strongly that this continued ownership and program with its activities only reasonably curtailed, might be converted to direct contribution to war-winning. Most of this justification was among ourselves. These facts should have been, and most certainly should be now, presented to officials who do not know,

Hunting Endorsed

Those who live long distances from the hunt field will van their horses to the place of meeting, arriving there with the horses fresh. Do they hunt the fox with motors? Do they dismount and chase him on foot? No! Only the horse has the cross-country mobility which is required. This demonstrates perfectly how we use modern cavalry in war. We can transport all or any part of our divisions to the battle area in motor trucks, arriving there fresh. Neither the motor vehicles nor the foot troops can approach them in battle-field mobility, which is not confined to roads, but which must flow over all kinds of terrain in the same manner as is illustrated in the hunting field.

Sincerely yours,

J. K. Herr,

Major General, U. S. Army
Chief of Cavalry

Office of the Chief of Cavalry

if we are to justify our right to citizenship and give meaning to all these words about the value of our horses and the potential value of our sports to the nation. If we do not take this action and then back what we say with co-operation, we shall have no grounds at all for resenting an indictment of ourselves as being selfish, indifferent to the danger to our country and unco-operative. None of these things is true and we should not permit any appearance of truth in them.

Officials, other than those who are members of our fraternity, have a wrong impression of what kind of people we are. I learned that in mid-summer conversations with officials who are in position to make effective use of our special capacities. They were surprised in some instances, incredulous in others, and one important official was downright "belittled". Conversation with him concerned this matter of supplementary coast patrol. He observed that riding coast patrol on the nice sandy beaches in the delightful summer weather, would, of course, be most enjoyable but that the real usefulness of a coast patrol would be at isolated spots and enlistment would not be worth while except for year-around co-operation.

Keystone Receives Champion Title At His Fourth Outing

BY CAROL HAGERMAN

Although Mexico, Mo., is in a saddle horse center, it has also hunters and jumpers. At the Audrain County Fair's Horse Show, held August 18 to 21, there were two classes every night for hunters and jumpers with every kind of jump imaginable. The courses were well laid out.

The horses were of unusually good quality and performed beautifully before the judge. Major Womack who has recently come from Fort Robinson, Nebraska to the Remount at Kansas City.

The O. G. Bitler's of Kansas City had two outstanding horses. Tuggles winner of the model class and of the hunter stake, a 4-years-old, he was also reserve hunter champion, and with another night to go he would have passed the champion Keystone. The other Bitler contestant was Suburban Limited, a big bay gelding standing 16.2 who also has a world of type. He jumped perfectly throughout the show with only one mistake to his credit. He has to his credit the blues in all the jumper classes and a ribbon in each hunter class with the exception of the green hunter, in which he did not show. Suburban Limited was acclaimed the jumper champion of the show.

Keystone, owned and shown by Carol Hagerman of Kansas City, won the hunter championship. He is a big half bred horse, and loves to jump. Keystone has only been shown 4 times and can be depended on to make a good performance.

George Manley of St. Louis had the reserve champion jumper of the show, Dispatcher, a good type Thoroughbred standing 16.3. A bit green now, it will be interesting to watch him this fall, as he is a hard horse to outdo.

Among the outstanding horses at the show were Grasslands, a veteran of the show ring who has also won his share of steeplechasing around St. Louis. Hebert, owned by Joe Mackey of Kansas City didn't seem up to form, but was still knocking at the door. Satan, owned by Ralph Fleming of St. Louis just needed the show to last a few days longer and he would have been pushing Suburban Limited.

Partnership Agreement

Whereas Neighborliness and Politeness Promote Better Service on Party Line Telephones:

Therefore Be It Agreed that Each Partner Shall:

1. Make sure the line is not in use before attempting to place a call.
2. Avoid interrupting others who are using the line.
3. Not hold up the line with lengthy conversations.
4. Answer calls promptly.
5. Replace the receiver carefully after each call so not to prevent use of the line by others.
6. Avoid making a number of calls in succession.
7. Restrain small children from excessive use of the line.
8. Concede the line to others in valid emergencies.

A Party Line is a Partnership and partnerships work well only when each partner does his part—cooperates.

More and more families will find it necessary to join party line partnerships—for we can no longer get materials with which to enlarge the telephone system.

By accepting party line service, these families will be helping to place copper where it is most needed—in ships and weapons.

Though in places there may not be enough telephone plant to go around, there is, we are certain, enough spirit of cooperation everywhere to make party line service good telephone service.

where they had to dismount, pee; and eat an orange, before mounting again; here many difficulties naturally arose. Then they proceeded to the next trial, which was 'o cross the ring, balancing an apple on a spoon, while leading their horse. If the latter felt inclined to devour their apple, they had to return and obtain another. Many of the mounts were so inclined.

It was good fun for all and a fine time for the children.

Vicmead's M. F. H. in A. C.

Simpson Dean, Master of Vicmead Hunt, (Del.), left last week for Florida, where he will undergo training in the Air Corps. He was recently commissioned a Captain. Plans have been made to sustain the regular hunting fixtures of the well known Vicmead pack this season, with members of the field cooperating in the continuance of sport, both in the old country as well as in the glorious flat galloping realm of the Manor territory, below the canal.

Instructor Lewis

2nd. Lieutenant Charles R. Lewis, well-known rider in the Eastern show circuit, graduated from the C. R. T. C. at Fort Riley on August 29 and has been assigned to the school as an instructor in equitation. Charlie was in Virginia for the opening day of Warrenton Horse Show where he had quite a time catching up with the latest goings on.

From Show Ring To Racing

Miss Janey Briggs of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., has put into training her former good conformation horse, Hillcoin, Hillcoin, by Hill Country—Nautch Dance, will be ridden by Johnny Vass. Miss Briggs has also retired her open jumper, Marina who is now in foal to Peter Hastings.

Randolphs At Grafton

Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Randolph, she the former Mrs. Theo Winthrop, are back at Dr. Randolph's Grafton Farm after a brief stay in Florida. Dr. Randolph, M. F. H. of Piedmont hounds, will carry on with fox hunting in his section this year, which seems to be the general attitude of most Virginia packs.

Bloomfield

A word for William Lambert, able manager of the Bloomfield Open Hunt. He is an able indefatigable horseman who has the happy faculty of managing a big active hunt club with ease, everyone staying happy, whatever his decisions as to policy. He considers his picking of winners at the Detroit Track as his one pardonable relaxation, but still has not decided when to bet on his choices.

Keystone Champion

ban Limited for the jumper champion. Satan is always good competition when there is an open class. His Royal Highness, owned by Mary Eberle, did not do himself justice in the show. A good going hunter in the field, he apparently does not like the show ring, and for this reason did not take home his share of the ribbons. A show at Mexico would not be right without The Duke, the John Rhodes' big chestnut gelding. This year Bob Smith brought him down from Kansas City to win the handy hunter class. There were many other good horses on hand but all names can't be mentioned.

Capt. Walter Staley, stationed at Camp Rucker, Ala., was sorely missed this year. He introduced hunters and jumpers to this show, and I am sure would have felt well rewarded had he been there this year. Incidentally he is the owner of one of the finest green hunters that has come out for some time, Dochandoris, chestnut mare 16.1, who is going well and just needs a little more experience.

FRANKSTOWN HUNT

Altoona, Pennsylvania. Established 1933. Recognized 1938.

August 27 3:30 P. M.

We hunted the home country about three-quarters of an hour, called the hunt off because of the extreme heat. 5 in the field.

August 29 8:00 A. M.

We hunted the home country—the weather was dry and hot. 7 in the field.

September 3, 8:00 A. M.

The hounds hunted the Catfish country, but over new land and new jumps in the Harry Moore section. It was warm today and the scenting was poor. The hounds were out about an hour and a half, 3 in the field.

September 12, 8:00 A. M.

The hunt met at Forsht's, and the hounds hunted very well, although the Master cut it short due to the extreme heat.

It was interesting today to watch the three couples of new Rollins Rock hounds out for their first time with our pack. All but one kept with the pack and hunted this strange country with strange associates in a most masterful manner, proving that blood will tell. 12 in the field.
